Is there enough support for International Students

George Tongariro

Whitireia Community Polytechnic
g.tongariro@whitireia.ac.nz

This poster is a continuation of my full paper which was delivered at NACCQ Conference 2000 in Wellington, Communication with students from other cultures. Since then there has been a very high increase in the number of international students coming to do study at tertiary institutes.

The two areas of most concern is the increasing percentages doing business and computing courses and is there enough support given to these students and is the current support enough to give the international students a fair go.

The poster will ask colleagues about the support services available at their institute and whether there is enough support, if not what are some suggestions to solve this problem. The results will be calculated and given by the end of the conference.